

Call for “New Topics” Abstracts for the First Encyclopedia of Macro Social Work

The first-ever Encyclopedia of Macro Social Work, an outgrowth of the field-defining Encyclopedia of Social Work, will be published by Oxford University Press and NASW Press in the coming months. While the bulk of this new work will consist of revised and updated articles from the Encyclopedia of Social Work, the editorial team, led by Darlyne Bailey and Terry Mizrahi, is delighted to extend a call for new topics to be considered for inclusion in this historic first edition.

On the other side of this flyer is a list of suggested topics for consideration. The editorial team will also consider new article topics that you wish to suggest. Please review the online edition of the Encyclopedia of Social Work (<https://oxfordre.com/socialwork>) to be sure that any suggested topic has not already been written/included.

Articles written for the Encyclopedia of Macro Social Work should be directly focused on macro social work, defined broadly to include macro practice methods as well as macro theories, concepts, ideologies, problems, and contexts relating to macro social work. The following criteria will be used for evaluating proposed entries:

- Entries must have a clearly described macro unit of analysis—communities, organizations, social systems, policy, social structures, etc., as opposed to micro-/individual-level.
- Entries may be related to macro practice methods, defined as community organization, policy practice, and management/administration.
- Entries may address wider social, political, economic, and cultural contexts and/or government policies and practices that affect macro social work.
- Where possible, entries should acknowledge systems of oppression and how these systems inform the context for and methods of macro social work.
- Entries should consider future implications for macro social work.

Authors should submit titles for new entries along with a 300-word abstract by 14 February 2020 to OUP editor Timothy Allen (timothy.allen@oup.com). Abstracts will be reviewed in February, and confirmed authors will be asked to submit completed entries by 1 June 2020. Submitted articles will undergo review by our editorial team. Authors may be asked to make revisions prior to final acceptance for publication.

Thank you for your interest in the Encyclopedia of Macro Social Work!
